General Reopening of Banks Is Expected by Monday; Quick Economy Action Seen

President Announces
'Gradual But Permanent'
Openings Will Begin;
New Currency Is Rushed to Many Banks.

RESERVE SYSTEM
TO FUNCTION TODAY

U. S. Grants Requests To Reopen With Ban on Gold Withdrawal as Only Restriction.

By the Associated Press.
The gradual but permanent opening of the nation's banks is to start next week.

President Roosevelt Friday revealed that solvent banks will start to do unrestricted business probably on Monday.

The 12 federal reserve banks were ordered open today for limited business as part of the program for reviving banking and business by expanding currency and increasing the nation's gold reserves.

The 12 federal reserve banks sent telegrams advising their member banks they might make application to reopen. The applications would be forwarded to the treasury department for a decision.

The treasury department began
Friday to rush to banks the $2,000-000,000 in new currency authorized by the emergency banking bill passed by congress and giving President Roosevelt regulatory powers over banks.

Authority to reopen the banks—most of them closed a full week by state and national proclamation—was given to the secretary of the treasury by President Roosevelt.

The president's order informed
Secretary of the Treasury William H.
Woodin he might permit federal reserve member banks to resume all or any of their usual functions. State banks might reopen upon the approval of the proper state authorities.

The treasury department was reported granting numerous requests for reopening, subject to President Roosevelt's order that they allow no withdrawals of gold or gold certificates.
The order also banned
exportation of gold.

President Roosevelt let it be known that he expected immediate reopening of banks on a gradual basis beginning Monday. He asked especially that the public not become worried
if a bank failed to open Monday.
Reopening of some, he said, would
occur later next week.

Secretary Woodin summed up the situation by saying: "Immediate action has been taken which will make possible resumption of banking operations
in substantial volume at a very early date." The president
contemplated opening of sound banks
for complete banking operations in every part of the country. Secretary Woodin

Buying Spurt Is Seen By Gotham Merchants

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)— Stores looked on the business situation with fresh hope today as credit applications continued to increase and buying was enlivened by the speed with which congress acted in the banking emergency.
After a married slump on Tuesday and Wednesday, the size of store crowds was reported to be steadily returning toward normal.
The pick-up in purchasing was regarded by executives of some stores as the beginning of a buying spurt that would develop into a quick pace as soon as the bank holiday is lifted.

3 ATLANTA BANKS READY TO REOPEN MONDAY MORNING

Permission for Unrestricted Resumption Expected Today; Bank Head Given Broader Powers.

As Atlanta's three leading banks
Friday prepared to reopen Monday for unrestricted business, the legislature hurriedly passed a bill giving to the governor and the state superintendent of banking the same emergency authority over state banks that congress Thursday conferred on the president and the secretary of the treasury.

Though the Atlanta banks asked,
in their application to Secretary of the Treasury William H. Woodin, permission to reopen as soon as possible,
President Roosevelt has ordered
that the public not become worried
if a bank failed to open Monday.
Reopening of some, he said, would
occur later next week.

Secretary Woodin summed up the situation by saying: "Immediate action has been taken which will make
possible resumption of banking operations
in substantial volume at a very early date." The president
contemplated opening of sound banks
for complete banking operations in every part of the country. Secretary Woodin

Officials of the sixth district Federal Reserve bank here said late Friday night that they had received no instructions from Washington about opening today and that the status of the reserve bank would, unless other instructions were received, be the same today as on Thursday and Friday.

The emergency banking act was passed by the house of representatives and the senate without a dissenting vote. It was not presented to the house until late in the afternoon and it took less than an hour to get it through both houses.

Governor Eugene Talmadge has not yet signed the measure. It is expected that it will be presented to him for his signature this morning.
As the legislature was passing the bill, Superintendent R. E. Gormley of state banks issued a call for a meeting of all officers, depositors and friends of state banks to meet with him at 10 o'clock this morning. This meeting, which was called for the city auditorium, will be held in the city auditorium.

Reduces Salary of All

Vast Power.

(Text of Message in Page 6.)
WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)— Swept on its way tonight by the unanimous approval of a special house committee, the Roosevelt request for encompassing authority to cut veterans' compensation and other governmental costs is ready to face a democratic caucus tomorrow as the next step on its road toward enactment.

Meanwhile the senate finance committee was ready to make a decision tomorrow upon the measure.
Representative McDuffie, of Alabama, announced tonight the action of the special house committee, composed of three democrats and two republicans.
By reserving a filing number McDuffie was able formally to introduce the measure at once, although the house was not in session.

"We are going to try to get the bill
through the house tomorrow," he said, shortly after democratic leaders had called a caucus for 10 a. m. in an attempt to bind the membership to support the legislation by which President Roosevelt expects to save in excess of $500,000,000.

It was learned that President
Roosevelt had asked Representative Byrnes, of Tennessee, the democratic leader, to sponsor the legislation in the house, but that Byrnes had declined, the special economy committee was created by the house. Mc-Duffie, as chairman, said he would speak for it.

Approval was given by the Mc-Duffie committee after a conference with Chairman Pat Harrison and other members of the senate finance committee. Harrison said the senate

Grady hospital in a critical condition
Friday night, according to hospital attaches. Her mother, Mrs. S. E.

shape of a pig, and that the water
scalded her leg and foot.

Popular Vote on Repeal Fails To Pass in House

Lower Branch Votes 100 to 57 for Resolution,
But Rivers Rules 103 Votes Required.
Senate Approves County Unit Plan.

By L. A. FARRELL.

While the senate Friday was approving a resolution to submit national prohibition repeal on a county referendum, the house defeated the narrow margin of three votes a resolution which would have ordered the election on the basis of the popular vote.

The vote in the senate was 37 to 4.
It was taken after a popular vote amendment was defeated, the sponsors announcing that an attempt would be made to inject the amendment in the bill when and if it reaches conference.

The house vote was 100 to 57 for passage, but Speaker Charles C. Rivers had held that the resolution required a majority of the entire house or 103 votes to obtain passage.

Proponents of the house resolution which included Representatives Conley of Tattall county, Parker of Colquitt county, Hand of Pelham county, Eckford and Still of Fulton, Lindsey of DeKalb, Myrick of Chatham, and Harris, Lanier and Cartledge of Richmond, gave notice that at the proper time they will move for reconsideration.

This group was confident Friday night that the necessary three votes to adopt the plan finally can and will be mustered.

The senate roll call follows:

13 Separate Shocks Hit Los Angeles and Environs; Toll Rises With Each Count

Bobby Jones Safe In Earthquake Area

Robert T. (Bobby) Jones Jr., Atlanta's famous golfer and now residing temporarily in Beverly Hills to make a series of golfing films, was reported safe and sound late Friday night following the earthquake which killed and injured
many in that section.

ROOSEVELT OFFERS ARMY, NAVY HELP TO STRICKEN AREA

President, Awakened
Upon Reports of California Disaster, Pledges U.
S. Facilities to Rolph.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—
President Roosevelt tonight extended the facilities of the government to Governor Rolph, of California, to relieve distress in the path of the earthquake.

After being up every night this week holding conferences on the banking emergencies, the chief executive had retired before news of the quake reached here. His aides awakened him as reports of destruction mounted.

Stephen T. Early, the president's secretary, gave the Associated Press
the following message from Mr.
Roosevelt to Governor Rolph and asked that a reply be transmitted to him:

"News dispatches report serious catastrophe in Los Angeles area.
Wires are down and cannot get any confirmation. If there is anything needed that the government can do, we are at once. Trust preliminary reports are exaggerated. Will be glad to be kept in touch with situation."

Red Cross headquarters awaited word from regional headquarters at San Francisco before swinging into wide resources into action to relieve distress.

The assistance of the United States fleet, whose battleships are lying off
San Pedro, was asked and extended.
Admiral Richard H. Leigh, the commander in chief, Pacific fleet, was

BANDITS GET $539 FROM TWO STORES

Wholesale Concern Loses
$475; Police Station Escape Is Sought.

Bandits who held up the wholesale food store of Lanier Brothers, at 793 Marietta street, late Friday afternoon and robbed the manager of $475 in cash and checks were partially linked by detectives with an earlier robbery of a Georgia Power Company store in which they believed an escaped prisoner from the police station was involved.

Just as E. R. Berry, manager of the store, was closing it for the day
two armed men entered and robbed him of the store's receipts, transferred only a few minutes before from the cash register to a small sack in which Berry intended taking the money home. Clyde Rollins, an employee, and Mrs. Rollins and J. M. Pirkle, a customer, were in the store at the time.

When Pirkle, who lost his purse to the bandits, attempted to resist one of the bandits made a threatening gesture and Berry persuaded Pirkle to give up the pocketbook.

The earlier robbery was at the power company store at Boulevard and Rosalia street, where the bandits, after forcing Mrs. Dorothy Tripp, the cashier, into a rear room, escaped with $64.80. Detectives believed that Ray Williams, whose escape from the police station became known Friday, and who was indicted Friday by the grand jury for holding up the Buck-head store of the power company several days ago, was involved in both the Lanier Brothers and power company holdups yesterday.

MOVIE PRODUCING STUDIOS DAMAGED FLAMES FOLLOW GAS MAIN CRACKS

Buildings Tumble in Entire Area; U. S. Army and Navy Ordered to Section for Rescue
Work and on Patrol To Prevent Looting;
High Buildings Sway Like Reeds as Shocks Continue.

LOS ANGELES, March 10.—(AP)—Violent earthquakes continuing three hours after the first shock of death and destruction added confusion to the scene of increasing damage and terror to all of southern California tonight.

At 11 o'clock (1 a. m. Atlanta time) the toll as reported from most authentic sources available reached 120 dead and more than 4,000 injured. Eleven shocks, at first diminishing and then increasing in violence, had rocked the section.

The path of death stretched from Santa Ana to Long Beach and Los Angeles.

Sixty-five bodies of earthquake victims were reported recovered from the ruins at Long Beach at 10:45 o'clock. It was estimated the death toll might be considerably nearer 100.

The brunt of the terrific convulsion tha. extended from San Diego to Santa Barbara, some 200 miles, and from the coast inshore for some 30 miles, was borne by Long Beach.

SURVEY DIFFICULT AS DEATH TOLL MOUNTS.

A mighty upheaval in the ocean, southwest of Long Beach,
was believed to have been the center of the disturbance.

The spearhead of death and destruction reached from Santa Ana, in Orange county, to Hermosa Beach, in Los Angeles county, with its point in the downtown district of Los Angeles.

Within this triangle the following death toll was reported:
Long Beach, 65 dead, 1,000 injured. Los Angeles, 12 dead, 3,000 injured. Watts, 4 dead. Compton, 13 dead, 150 injured. Santa Ana, 3 dead. Huntington Park, 12 dead. San Pedro, 2 dead. Wilmington, 1 dead. Bellflower, 3 dead. Artesia, 4 dead. Hermosa Beach, 1 dead. Garden Grove, 1 dead.
Walnut Park, 1 dead. Norwalk, 1 dead.

As these lines were being written the building of the Los Angeles office of the Associated Press was swaying, with accentuated jolts from time to time and, at intervals of 10 to 20 minutes, extremely violent shocks that caused all hands to reach to some support as in a swaying small craft at sea.

Hospitals were crowded to overflowing at emergency centers of the city and urgent calls were sent out for all emergency hospitals.

FIRES BREAK OUT IN LOS ANGELES AREAS.

Surgeons found extreme difficulty in handling cases of the injured as the great shocks shook the operating tables upon which were stretched the patients.

The wide area affected by the destructive convulsions of the earth's strata made it extremely difficult to make a survey of the toll in lives and property.

Recurrent shocks added new damage as attempts were made to check.

Fires, in widely separated areas, added to the night of terror.
Army and navy men were called out to help police and firemen. California National Guardsmen were ordered to be ready to assist where needed.

In several communities school houses were burned, while an oil fire was reported raging in the Union Oil Refinery in the harbor district.

In the southwest section of Los Angeles were a number of fires.

The roof of the Long Beach Sun building fell in, cornerstones fell out of many buildings and automobiles parked at the curbs near buildings were buried in debris, it added.

The 11th naval district here received a radio message from the Point Firmin direction finding station which said it was not damaged, but added the Long Beach chief of police had requested all the armed guards available be sent to his aid.

From all parts of the section between San Diego and Ventura, and as far inland as San Bernardino, some 200 miles long and 30 miles wide, came reports of death and damage.
The first shock struck at 5:55 p. m.
Downtown streets in Los Angeles were thronged. Buildings swayed violently, from north to south. Lights flickered. Bricks crashed from the fronts of old buildings. Merchandise spilled in confusion from store shelves as plate glass windows shattered and cracked on the sidewalks.

Similar scenes were enacted in more than a hundred communities of the Los Angeles metropolitan area. In five or Shock followed shock. In five or

50,000 ATTEND CERMAK FUNERAL

Most Impressive Rites
City Ever Saw Accorded Assassin's Victim.

CHICAGO, March 10.—(AP)—Mayor Anton Joseph Cermak, Chicago's first foreign-born mayor, who started in the coal pits, rose to the majority and died from an assassin's bullet, was buried in the Bohemian National cemetery today in the most impressive funeral the city ever saw.

It was just 23 days after he was wounded by a shot intended for President-elect Roosevelt at Miami, Fla. Police estimated 50,000 persons—soldiers, sailors, municipal employees and citizens—marched in his funeral procession—a line five miles long. The 12-mile route to the cemetery was lined with additional crowds estimated in hundreds of thousands.

Before the burial, civic services were held in the Chicago stadium, huge amphitheater on the near west side of the city where Mayor Cermak once, as democratic national committeeman, took an active part in the political convention which nominated Roosevelt for the presidency.

Mayor Cermak was not a member of any denomination, so the services were non-sectarian. Governor Henry Horner, of Illinois, his long-time friend and political associate; Rev. John Thompson, of the First Methodist church; Father Daniel Frawley, of St. Jerome's Catholic church, and Rabbi Louis Mann, of Sinai temple, eulogized the mayor.

The casket lay on a catafalque located in the center of a flower-formed cross on the stadium floor. The seating capacity of 25,000 was filled to overflowing. Mayor Cermak's casket was placed in the family vault beside the body of his wife, Mary, who preceded him in death several years ago. Brief Masonic rites were administered.

Huddled about the crypt were men with whom Cermak was intimately associated in political affairs. Among them were members of the democratic national committee, Governor Paul V. McNutt, of Indiana; Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, N. J.; John H. McCooey, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Senators James Hamilton Lewis and William H. Dieterich, of Illinois; John F. Curry, New York Tammany leader; members of the Illinois general assembly, and Lieutenant Colonel C. B. Hodges, President Roosevelt's personal representative.

DIESEL-POWERED CAR FOR RAILROAD

BUILT IN ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS, March 10.—A Diesel-powered railway car designed for main-line service, similar to those successfully tried in Germany, has been built in the shops of a St. Louis railway equipment concern.

Rated for a maximum speed of 80 miles an hour, the unit will haul three passenger coaches, its builders assert, at less than half the cost of operating a similar steam train.

First cost of the oil-electric unit is also said to be considerably less than for steam locomotives of equal power. Its makers hope it will prove the "salvation" of railroads now unable to operate profitably with reduced traffic volume.

The new "engine" is more than that in reality. It is a combination locomotive, railway postoffice, baggage and express car. It is 75 feet long and weighs 104 tons.

ROOSEVELT MOVES TO AID ARMS MEET

Hull, Davis Called Into Conference To Discuss
Next U. S. Actions.

By F. G. YOSBURG.
WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—Rattling sabers in the far east and in Germany stirred President Roosevelt to take a personal hand tonight in seeking to cause the cause of disarmament.

A suddenly called White House conference with Secretary of State Hull and Norman H. Davis, American disarmament conference delegate, disclosed a belief on the part of the government that a showdown is imminent on the whole great movement toward reduced military strength and expenditures.

While participants declined to discuss the conference, it was understood the Roosevelt administration will take the position that if other nations increase their armaments instead of reducing them it will be necessary for the United States to do likewise.

At the same time, the full strength of this nation's prestige and influence will be thrown into the contention that one of the most powerful aids toward world economic recovery would be a definite agreement reducing expenditures for armies and navies.

Hull and Davis bore to the White House the latest information on developments in the far east and in Europe, where French fears have been aroused lest Germany, under the powerful fascist premier, Adolf Hitler, may attempt to rearm.

From Japan in recent days has come the disquieting word that in view of the undeclared war with China the Japanese will seek to increase their armaments and that they are not satisfied with the 5-3 ratio agreed on at the Washington naval conference under which they have technical naval inferiority to the United States and Great Britain.

Another report has been that the Japanese would feel free to build a navy for Manchuria, the state they have created in captured Manchuria.

President Roosevelt's secretary of the navy, Claude A. Swanson, recently announced that he would seek to have America's sea forces built up to the limit of the London and Washington naval treaties.

The White House discussion was a general one; but Davis, who is expected to return soon to Europe for disarmament talks, was given certain informal but definite instructions by Mr. Roosevelt.

Mr. Davis is expected to see President Roosevelt again next week on the subject.

CAMPAIGN FOR SILVER RENEWED BY PITTMAN

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—Senators from the west today initiated a move to turn the monetary emergency into rejuvenated prices for silver.

In three bills designed to bring silver into wider use as money and to lift from the market the existing surplus, Key Pittman, of Nevada, democratic president pro tempore of the senate, renewed a campaign begun last session.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler, democrat, Montana, reintroduced his bill for the remonetization of silver at a rate of 16 with gold, the old war cry of William Jennings Bryan in his campaign for the presidency.

One of Pittman's bills would permit Great Britain to pay up to $100,000,000 of her war debt in silver, with the maximum allowance to be 45 cents per ounce.

Another would authorize the government to buy 5,000,000 ounces a month of the domestic production, while the third proposed that this country purchase $250,000,000 worth in the open market to remove the world surplus.

The new "engine" is more than that in reality. It is a combination locomotive, railway postoffice, baggage and express car. It is 75 feet long and weighs 104 tons.

At 8:30 p. m. it was reported that a large bakery in the eastern part of Los Angeles was aflame, the heat being so great no one could approach. It was not known whether workers were trapped inside the structure.

Homes and streets were flooded at Ninety-fourth street and Western avenue in Los Angeles when the quake knocked a big water tank from its supports.

The deluge threw residents of the district into terror.

Panic prevailed among patients in the General hospital as one shock followed another. Hundreds rushed screaming for exits and plaster fell from ceilings and walls. Many fainting, and were saved by nurses from being trampled under foot.

Film Stars Safe.
Homes of motion picture stars in the Malibu Beach colony were damaged but slightly, telephone reports said. The chimney of the residence of Walter Morosco was tumbled.

Hundreds of Japanese men, women and children fled Terminal island, between San Pedro and Long Beach, fearing a tidal wave. Carrying household goods and blankets they made their way to the mainland and slept in the number of injured.

Railroads reported passenger trains operating generally on schedule. Inspectors rode ahead of Southern Pacific and Santa Fe trains to examine line tracks and tunnels.

At this hour, the character of the reports, together with information at the Carnegie Institution of Washington geological laboratory at Pasadena, indicated the epicenter of the disturbance was in the ocean, possibly off Newport Beach, south of Long Beach. More than a hundred separate shocks were felt.

Huntington Park, a small community with a large business district immediately adjacent to Pasadena, indicated the epicenter of the disturbance was in the ocean, possibly off Newport Beach, south of Long Beach. More than a hundred separate shocks were felt.

Twelve bodies were recovered from the ruins within four hours of the first quake. Some reports were that at least twenty as many lives were lost there. No estimate could be made of the number of injured.

Signal Hill Oil Fire.
One of the reports from the Long Beach area came from Milton Bland, of the advertising department of the Long Beach Press-Telegram. He was driving on Cherry avenue near Willow street, at the foot of Signal Hill on the eastern outskirts of the city. He said his car was thrown violently from side to side when the embankment of geles harbor, a large emergency force of marines and sailors was dispatched to Long Beach.

San Pedro police said that two masts on famous "Old Ironsides" were broken by the force of the quakes. It was lashed to a dock at the time.

Fires flared out in many communities chiefly those between Los Angeles and its harbor district, 20 miles away.

Panic and destruction, fire and death spread through the great metropolitan area as the shocks recurred.

The first and most severe caught tens of thousands of homebound citizens in the downtown area. White-faced, they rushed here and there seeking safety.

Ensuing Shocks.
Reports of the destruction wrought by the first quake were just beginning to come in when a second one struck, at 6:06 p. m. Four minutes later a third, and a fourth shock was felt two minutes behind that. At 6:16 p. m. the fifth quake shook the area. Then there was a pause until 6:28. The seventh shock came while reports of the dead, dying and injured were beginning to stream in. The eighth shock occurred at 8:44 p. m.

Long Beach, which was believed to have been at the epicenter of the shock, was isolated. The quake had been expected by seismologists for years, but their forecasts had not been accurate.

The walls of the old Chamber of Commerce building fell in Los Angeles and many injured were reported taken from the ruins. A part of the old police station fell into the street.

A fire in downtown Los Angeles was soon quenched, the water mains having held. Building collapsed at Central and Main streets in the western section of the city. Several were injured.

Motion picture workers fled from studios in Culver City as plaster cracked and fell from the walls. All Los Angeles fire equipment was in action a few minutes after the first quakes.

Buildings Aflame.
The tremors fired a number of public and private buildings at Huntington Park.

The auditorium of the Huntington Park High school was aflame, as were several industrial structures nearby.

Walls of many structures were damaged and bricks strewn the sidewalks. Hundreds of windows were broken.

Long through the lower floors of the city hall, a woman who gave her name as Mrs. Virginia Welborn hysterically informed police that she had just killed a man in front of the building at her car ran out of control as a result of the quake. The body was removed to a hospital by a passing motorist.

Fifty hundred physicians and surgeons, 56 ambulances, scores of private vehicles and practically all the registered nurses in the city were working at various hospitals and hastily organized emergency centers.

The Los Angeles Emergency hospital appealed for additional doctors as ambulance calls poured in from the southern section of the county.

Compton Damage.
An appeal from Compton said every masonry building in the town was leveled or badly damaged and that medical supplies were badly needed.

Harry Parsons, Compton newspaperman, telephoned that he took a carload of medical supplies to the hospital and health center and found the institutions overflowing with injured.

As additional reports came in it was revealed that the tremors shook and twisted every city and hamlet south of the Tehachapi mountains, that is, Southern California proper.

Calls came from many communities for medical protection. An appeal was sent from Long Beach to the governor to call out the national guard for police duty.

The main shock seemed to center down the region of the Santa Ana river, which was first named by the white settlers the "River of the Sweet Name of Jesus of the Earthquakes." On the banks of the river in 1778 a band of Spanish soldiers were badly shaken. They named it in tribute to the tremor.

The Los Angeles district, which Long Beach adopted as the Bay of the Earthquakes.

About every seventy-five years the area has been stricken, the last major earthquake being in 1907.

A tower of the city hall in Inglewood caved in and the walls and roofs of numbers of downtown buildings were damaged. No casualties were reported.

Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz ordered his complete force of deputies to Long Beach and Compton.

He was driving on Cherry avenue near Willow street, at the foot of Signal Hill on the eastern outskirts of the city. He said his car was thrown violently from side to side when the embankment of the east side of the road gave way a moment later and toppled into the street.

Next he heard an explosion and saw flames shooting up from an oil derrick on the west side of Atlantic avenue at San Antonio drive. Within a short time a dozen derricks were blazing, he said, and most of them toppled over.

Downtown he observed fire hydrants on Anaheim street near Orange avenue had broken and water was gushing about 75 feet into the air.

All Windows Shattered.
Getting back to the main business section, he said that it was his observation that on American avenue and Pine street from Seventh to the ocean there was not a window left intact in a single building.

In the plant of the Press-Telegram, he said, was so badly damaged that the morning edition of its subsidiary, The Sun, would be published in Pasadena.

Admiral R. H. Leigh, commanding the United States fleet, sent 625 blue-jackets and marines into Long Beach and into Compton tonight and said he expected to have 1,200 or more landed and working in Long Beach by morning. He has 20,000 men available for rescue relief work.

Nordley Steele, member of the Los Angeles police air reserve unit, took off in an airplane at 9 p. m. to make a survey of the Long Beach, Compton and Long Beach areas and report on isolated fires so they could be given immediate attention.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 10.—(AP)—Governor James Rolph Jr., considered tonight declaring a state of emergency in connection with the southern California earthquake.

Should he do this he would call the state emergency relief council into action.

ALL NAVAL FORCES STAND BY TO LEND AID

SAN DIEGO, Cal., March 10.—(AP)—All naval vessels in the San Diego Bay were preparing at 8:45 o'clock tonight to depart at the command of Vice Admiral W. D. Leahy for Long Beach, a four-hour voyage.

A radio message from the commanding officer of the U. S. S. California, flagship of the battle force now standing off Long Beach, said, "In view of the possibility of disturbances being prepared to send all available armed forces."

The message also asked that all available armaments be landed at Long Beach to report to Lieutenant Commander W. A. Heard, of the California, who is commandant of patrols already ashore there. It asked that the maximum medical equipment be landed and all fire fighting equipment not needed for the safety of the ships.

All sailors on leave in San Diego were instructed to report to their ships in a special radio broadcast.

LONG BEACH MAYOR APPEALS FOR ASSISTANCE

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 10.—(AP)—W. R. R. LeVivier Jr., amateur radio operator, intercepted the following message at 10 p. m. (C. S. T.) from WJAO at Long Beach, Cal.: "At 8:30 p. m. San Francisco, Cal., Rush help. Many lives lost. Mayor Harris."

CITY HALL TOWER FALLS AS SANTA MONICA IS HIT

SANTA MONICA, Cal., March 10.—(AP)—Several buildings were damaged in the earthquake here tonight and a woman was injured when she fell fleeing from an auditorium.

A section of the city hall tower collapsed and a portion of one of the Palisades above the ocean tumbled down. A dancing casino was wrecked.

FORT MACARTHUR TROOPS RUSHED TO QUAKE AREA

SAN FRANCISCO, March 10.—(AP)—Headquarters here of the ninth corps said tonight the commandant of Fort MacArthur had been instructed to throw all his command, totaling about 800 men, to the aid of civil authorities in Southern California in aiding earthquake casualties and guarding property.

ARMY, NAVY HELP TO STRICKEN AREA

mander, informed the navy department by radio tonight.

His message was brief, reporting there had been an earthquake, the damage of which had not been determined.

The form of assistance usually taken by the navy is in rescue work and police duty by the men, giving medical assistance and other aid.

The rest of the fleet, with such units as the submarine fleet might be endangered in a quake-affected region, were at San Diego.

At President Roosevelt's direction, Early action of Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, and General Douglas MacArthur, chief of army staff, to extend all assistance within their means in the stricken area. These instructions were transmitted immediately to naval and army posts in the Los Angeles district.

Admiral Pratt was asked to have an immediate survey made by officers of the fleet and report as soon as possible to Washington.

Naval communications were informed soon after midnight that the relief of the ships stationed at Long Beach had swung into action and at that time were coping with the situation satisfactorily.

These radio communications confirmed dispatches from Los Angeles that early reports of hundreds killed in Long Beach were exaggerated. The navy radio did not attempt, however, to estimate the dead or injured.

With the battleships and cruisers centered at San Pedro, upwards of 25,000 men were estimated to be there with the fleet, most of whom would be available for pressing into relief service.

The fleet, also, provides large medical and hospital facilities, including full medical stores, for the officers

Roosevelts' Refreshing Reactions Take Breath of Staid Washington

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP)—The Roosevelts have done something to Washington—the President and Mrs. Roosevelt both.

This is a world capital. Of a democratic nation, of course, but nevertheless a staid, tradition-bound capital. Five days in its midst and these two have very nearly turned the scene upside down.

The president smiles, and laughs loud, hearty laughs, in the midst of troubles that would break many men. And in between he planks down detailed, terse plans to do things on a tremendous scale.

Mrs. Roosevelt, informal beyond words, turns up with her dog at the signing of a vital bank bill. It is a solemn occasion. The terrier barks. Instead of hushing it, Mrs. Roosevelt laughs and the president smiles, too.

Congress meets and up in the gallery is a hatless Mrs. Roosevelt, in shirtwaist and skirt, with a group of friends, busily knitting. She acknowledges surprise applause but her knitting needles keep flying.

Vital conferences are going on without the columned White House. The president is expounding and arguing, convincing leaders of congress of the necessity of steps which, under a less compelling personality and in a day of less urgent pressure, they would certainly duck. On the steps sit newspapermen, gaily singing, a presidential secretary setting the pitch, until midnight brings forth the conferees.

In the morning the president is back at his desk looking fresh, vigorous. News photographers ask for a picture of his signing the bank bill. Into the White House—not the executive office—and upstairs they are ushered. They don't recall that ever happening before.

A press conference, and the newspapermen fire questions at the president. He answers, laughs, again, exchanges quips, enjoys it.

JEW'S PROMISED SAFETY BY HITLER

Drive Against Communists and Republicans Is Started in Bavaria.

BERLIN, March 10.—(AP)—Nazi drives against communists and republicans were started in Bavaria today while a member of Chancellor Hitler's cabinet promised legal safety for the Jews, although storm troops urged boycotts against Jewish merchants in Berlin streets.

Captain Hermann Goering, a Nazi member of the cabinet, assured the Central Union of Jewish Citizens that "the safety and life of Jewish citizens is legally guaranteed."

Meanwhile throngs of curious watched troops who urge a boycott against Jewish merchants and the resignation of a Jew who is executive chairman of the stock exchange was demanded by a crowd of Nazi. All Jewish merchants in Annaberg were arrested.

The drives in Bavaria, the last stronghold of opposition to Chancellor Hitler, were made under orders from General Franz von Epp, Nazi federal commissioner who took control yesterday. He ordered the arrest of all communist officials and all leaders of the Reichsbanner republican organization. Nazi storm troops were directed to supplement the regular police, and the police were instructed to overcome all resistance they might encounter in hoisting Nazi banners on official buildings. The authorities started searches for hidden weapons.

Two persons were reported killed and more than a score injured in political disorders in various parts of the nation. A socialist publisher at Chemnitz was shot dead resisting Nazi storm troops who were invading his newspaper office. At Brunswick one person was killed when a socialist clubhouse was occupied by the police. Twenty persons were wounded in a gun fight which developed when Nazis occupied the town hall at Zevenkru. At Cologne Wilhelm Sollmann, who was minister of interior under Chancellor Stresemann, was attacked and injured by political opponents.

PARIS, March 10.—(AP)—Diplomatic protests against the occupation by Adolf Hitler's Nazis of the barracks at Kehl and against the legalizing of the Nazi brownshirts, became a possibility today after an all-day conference attended by the heads of the French and British governments.

Dispatches from Strasbourg announced that 500 Nazis occupied the demilitarized Kehl barracks yesterday and raised the Nazi swastika flag. Kehl is on the right bank of the Rhine three miles east of Strasbourg. It is in Baden.

Famous Sculptor Killed by Subway

NEW YORK, March 10.—(AP)—The body of a man who fell or jumped to his death in front of a subway train today was identified this evening as Moses W. Dykkaar, well-known sculptor. He was 48 years old.

His wife, Mrs. Bella Dykkaar, made the identification. Two children, Raymond, 9, and David, 4, also survive.

A bust of Calvin Coolidge by Dykkaar was purchased for the national capital by congress in 1927.

Another Coolidge bust of Dykkaar's was presented to Amherst College, the late president's alma mater, by his classmates in 1928.

Many prominent persons have sat for Dykkaar, including President Harding, former Vice President Curtis and General Pershing.

Charges of murder and assault with intent to murder against Davis in connection with the murder of Mrs. Sam Henderson and the wounding of her husband and son also are down for trial on that day.

Police investigating the details of the confession of the two negroes Friday began probing the record of Leonard Williams, uncle of Davis, on suspicion that he may be connected with the murder of another negro, who last summer was thrown from the Spring street viaduct. Williams was picked up by the police when Davis told them that he gave his wife a watch belonging to Mrs. Henderson. The watch was recovered.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Catholics Against Hitler.

The powerful centum party in Germany, led by Pius XI and Dr. Brüning, has come out openly against the Hitler dictatorship.

The United States department of agriculture reports that one and one-half million people have returned to the farm in the last two years. A million more will follow. This is what has happened in other major depressions. It is significant of the future. Vast numbers of these people are on farms or nearly so. On the farm they will be self-sustaining and the money that was required to support them will be set free for production purposes in industry and business. That, in turn, will mean increased employment and increased demand for the food that comes from the farm.

The farming interests of the United States need, and should have, sympathetic and practical aid in their efforts to emerge from their present difficulties, but the political nostrums with which they have been dosed during the past few years, under the guise of "farm relief," have done more harm than good.

Marketing systems that have been developed through a hundred years of experience have been disrupted and foreign outlets for surplus crops have been closed by impractical schemes.

Instead of trying to tell the farmer how to run his business, relief efforts should be in the direction of broadening his markets, instead of lessening them, and towards making his dollar more stable.

The republican tariff wall, shutting off commerce between the United States and other nations, started the downfall of the farmer, and the wrecking effect on his domestic marketing system, resulting from the stabilizing efforts of the farm board, completed the job.

A BANKER'S ADMISSION.

It is not surprising that the program proposed by Winthrop W. Aldrich, head of the Chase National Bank of New York, to rid commercial banking of "any spirit of speculation" has disturbed some of the high financiers, "international" bankers and holding company manipulators of Wall Street.

Under its provisions the rich loot some of these unethical bankers have been extracting from the unsuspecting investors of the country would be a thing of the past.

Significance is added to the Aldrich suggestion by the fact that he is a brother-in-law of John D. Rockefeller Jr., and a son of former United States Senator Aldrich, an outstanding champion of banking reform. The approval of the program by the active head of the Rockefeller interests is another testimonial of the broad humanitarianism of the Rockefellers, father and son.

The Aldrich proposal is tantamount to a confession, coming from the biggest bank in the world, located in the heart of Wall Street, that the Wall Street banking methods of the past are dangerously wrong and for the good of the country, and the banks themselves, must be changed.

The statement, in substance, puts this great financial institution and its allied interests in the position of saying, "We acknowledge the error of the past and congress should act accordingly to make impossible such activities in the future."

Aldrich emphasizes the fact that banks and investment companies must be completely divorced. The mere prohibition of joint directors would mean nothing, for ownership dictates the real controlling power of any corporation and if an investment company and a bank are under the same ownership the situation would be the same as if there were an interlocking directorate.

The Aldrich plan would include all commercial banks in the United States in the federal reserve system; would forbid private bankers to take deposits or to be directors of banks of deposit, and would sharply limit the size of bank directorates.

With this admission from the head of the world's biggest bank that sweeping reforms are needed in our banking system, certainly no further urging upon congress should be necessary for the enactment of legislation to protect the business interests, the investors and the depositors of the country from the excesses that have been practiced.

The Aldrich statement will have a further clarifying effect upon a situation that is generally clearing up. Already it is assured that banking in this country hereafter will be very different from the Wall Street type which has prevailed during recent years.

During the last few years, while thousands of banks were closing their doors in the United States, not a single bank failed in either England or Canada—inconceivable evidence that our system must be revised.

No lawyers were admitted to Sing Sing last year, but they were permitted to enter some examples of their work.

Of course co-operation will save the world. Look how much feminine co-operation has improved petting.

Letters From a Bald-Headed Dad to a Flapper Daughter

BY ROBERT QUILLLEN

My dear Louise: You have reached the point, to which all youth of any promise come soon or late, where the long way stretching ahead threatens to be a desert waste unless you can accomplish something big in the world.

Well, perhaps you are destined to set the woods afire. If you have the gift, nothing can stop you. But don't burden yourself with the idea that all of us are here to accomplish something big, falling in with the crowd and doomed to a life of shame and remorse.

The plan of nature, as you may learn by observation or by study of the little history man has uncovered, is one of growth and development.

Progress may be slow, but our race, like the earth we inhabit, is in a constant state of change that develops new merits step by step without ceasing.

There may be little change in one generation, and the ultimate goal of perfection may be millions of years away, but the process continues always and each advance makes the plan seem clearer.

To prevent any possibility of failure, nature is prodigal beyond all understanding. If one egg is to be made fertile, a million life germs are provided to fertilize it.

The tree in the forest develops and scatters ten thousand seed where but one more tree has space to grow.

The fish in the sea lay so many eggs that if all should hatch and the young reach maturity, there soon would be no open water in which to swim.

Turtles crawl upon the warm beach to lay their eggs, and millions of baby turtles hatch safely in the sand and then hasten to reach the safety of the sea.

Why so many? To make sure that the necessary few will survive. Do all people move civilization forward? Not one in many thousands. Some follow a leader; some lag behind; some interfere. In each generation there may be but one to collaborate in the great plan and set a new and higher standard.

Many are called and few are chosen. Only the rare great spirits can be partners of God.

If you have five talents, use them. If you have none, be content to enjoy the privilege of living.

In any case you will be useful—whether you realize it or not. The seeds that seem wasted are eaten by the birds, or they enrich the soil for the one destined to become a great tree.

Love, DAD.

Text of Roosevelt's Message Demanding Federal Savings

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP) The text of President Roosevelt's message follows:

The nation is deeply gratified by the immediate response given yesterday by the congress to the necessity of drastic action to restore and improve our banking system.

A like necessity exists with respect to the finances of the government itself, and the congress is equally courageous, frank and prompt action.

For three long years the federal government has been on the road toward bankruptcy.

For the fiscal year 1931 the deficit was $462,000,000.

For the fiscal year 1932 it was $2,740,000,000.

For the fiscal year 1933 it will probably exceed $1,200,000,000.

For the fiscal year 1934, based on the appropriation bills passed by the last congress, the estimated revenue deficit will probably exceed $1,000,000,000 unless immediate action is taken.

Thus we shall have piled up an accumulated deficit of $5,000,000,000.

With the utmost seriousness I point out to the congress the profound effect of this fact upon our national economy.

It has contributed to the recent collapse of our banking structure. It has accentuated the stagnation of the economic life of our people. It has added to the ranks of the unemployed.

Our government is not to be ordered and for many reasons no effective action has been taken to restore it to order.

Upon the unimpaired credit of the United States government rest the safety of deposits, the security of insurance policies, the activity of industrial enterprises, the value of our agricultural products and the availability of the employment.

The credit of the United States government is deeply affected by these fundamental human values. It, therefore, becomes our first concern to make secure the foundation. National recovery depends upon it.

Too often in recent history liberal governments have been wrecked on rocks of loose fiscal policy. We must avoid this danger.

It is too late for a leisurely approach to this problem. We must not wait to act several months hence. The emergency is accentuated by the necessity of meeting the great refunding operations this spring.

We must move with a direct and resolute purpose now. The members of the congress are pledged to immediate action.

I am, therefore, assuming that you and I are in complete agreement as to the need for action.

I am, therefore, assuming that you and I are in complete agreement as to the need for action.

I am, therefore, assuming that you and I are in complete agreement as to the need for action.

I am, therefore, assuming that you

CHRISTENING RITES FOR MACON TODAY

Wife of Admiral Moffett To Name Giant Airship for Georgia City.

AKRON, Ohio, March 10.—(P)—The giant Macon, sister to the airship U. S. S. Akron, rode lightly on her "ways" tonight in the Goodwin-Zepelin dock ready for her air-birth and formal christening tomorrow.

Workmen swarmed over ladders and scaffolds today, putting the finishing touch here and there to the ship which will share the title of "the world's largest airship" with the Akron, an almost exact counterpart, completed in the fall of 1931.

At 2:30 p. m., eastern standard time, Mrs. W. A. Moffett, wife of Rear Admiral Moffett, chief of the bureau of aeronautics of the navy department, will pull the red, white and blue cord releasing 48 pigeons from the bow, as she pronounces the words, "I christen thee Macon."

A ground crew will release the cables that hold her to four slender towers and the Macon will rise under the buoyance of 6,500,000 cubic feet of helium gas to signalize her air-birth.

But her freedom will not be complete. She will be held fast after the christening workmen will resume their task of installing equipment as she rides in the dock, until March 30, tentative date for the first trial flight.

Government officials, army and navy officers, prominent industrial and business executives, aviation and naval attaches of foreign governments and men and women high in national aviation circles will witness the christening.

From Macon, Ga., was to come a delegation, including eight of the city's most beautiful girls, and G. Glenn Toole, mayor of the southern city. The latter will present a silver service set to Commander Alger H. Dreese, captain of the Macon.

Governor George White, of Ohio, and Mayor C. Nelson Sparks, of Akron, are scheduled to speak briefly at the christening. A dinner for 350 guests and a ball will follow the christening.

The Macon, final unit to be completed in the navy's airship building program authorized in 1928, was started with the raising of the first main rig on December 19, 1931, a few weeks after the Akron was completed. Her contract cost is $2,450,000, while nearly $8,000,000 was spent for the two ships and the dock in which they were constructed.

JUNIOR STUDENT WINS STOCK JUDGING TESTS

ATHENS, Ga., March 10.—(P)—J. M. Thornton, of Dewey Rose, a Junior in the College of Agriculture, is winner in the series of live stock judging contests held this year at the school.

He made a score of 1,677, which was nearest to the average score of 1,800. Nine other high contestants and their scores follow:

J. F. Strickland, of Royston, 1,649; M. C. Southard, of Atlanta, 1,648; R. L. Carpenter, of Elberton, 1,626; N. M. Johnson, of Decatur, 1,616; S. S. Johnson, of Jonesboro, 1,603; J. S. Harden, of Hogansville, 1,571; E. C. Jones, of Cobbville, 1,561; and W. T. Ezzard, of Dalton, 1,532.

Thornton was awarded a silver trophy by the Saddle and Sircion Club, sponsor of the contest.

LAMAR COUNTY GETS $8,051 R. F. C. FUND

BARNESVILLE, Ga., March 10.—Lamar county has obtained from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation the sum of $8,051 for relief purposes during March and April, according to announcement made by E. L. Butler, ordinary and chairman of the advisory board.

Butler, son of the late J. M. Anderson, of Barnesville, who has been an investigator for the relief organization of the city of New York for more than a year, has returned home to assist with this work.

Authorities of the R. F. C. state that 75 per cent of the fund must be expended on labor for public works and 25 per cent of it is to be used for destitute people unable to work.

The major part of the fund here will be used to pay local laborers on public roads and other public improvements.

M'WHORTER HEADS PHI KAPPA SOCIETY

ATHENS, Ga., March 10.—(P)—Hanson McWhorter, of Lexington, son of President Hamilton McWhorter, of the Georgia senate, has been unanimously elected president of the Phi Kappa literary society at the University of Georgia.

He is a member of the junior class and is manager of this year's basketball team.

FIRE IN SEED HOUSE DOES $35,000 DAMAGE

LOUISVILLE, Ga., March 10.—Fire of undetermined origin broke out in the seed house of the cotton oil mill of the Louisville Fertilizer & Gin Company here this afternoon, causing a loss of approximately $35,000, fully covered by insurance.

The fire was confined to the one building which was totally destroyed. Approximately 1,000 tons of cottonseed beside a large quantity of cottonseed products was burned.

SMUGGLERS ATTACK BORDER PATROLMAN

SEATTLE, Wash., March 10.—(P)—Bearings out and bruises and physically exhausted, E. L. Ballenger, United States patrol officer operating near the Canadian line, was recovering today from a brutal kidnapping attack by two smugglers who took him "for a ride."

He returned here last night by plane from Medford, Ore., after he had been found yesterday handcuffed to a tree near the Oregon-California line.

Foreign Agents Must Haul Embassy Row's Whisky

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(P)—Diplomatic agents of several foreign countries apparently are going to have to journey to New York to provide a formal and official escort for truck loads of liquor on their way to Washington's "embassy row."

A consignment of British whisky intended for consumption during the spring social season at the Norwegian, Swedish, Nicaraguan, Irish and Danish diplomatic missions was brought on an American ship bound for Baltimore by way of New York. It was taken off at New York by treasury agents because under prohibition laws liquor can not be shipped from one American port to another.

FULL PARDON GRANTED TO NEGRO PHYSICIAN

MACON, Ga., March 10.—(P)—A full pardon with the restoration of all civil rights has been granted by Governor Edgewood Cross to Dr. M. Clarence Mitchell, negro physician of Macon, who was paroled some time ago after serving ten years of a life sentence on conviction of murder.

The case grew out of the death of his nephew, Henry Sam Mitchell, who was slain, the prosecution claimed, in a scheme to collect insurance on his life.

NEW RADIO CHAIN
Will Go on Air

NEW YORK, March 10.—Formation of a third network group of broadcasting stations, with Ed Wynn, comedian, as president, was announced by Wynn tonight. It is to be known as the Amalgamated Broadcasting System.

While sponsorship of programs will be sought, the chain is to operate with a policy providing brief sponsors' announcements only at the beginning and the end of a period, with the additional advice—"Look in tomorrow's paper" for further information. Wynn explained it is the intention to cooperate with newspapers and magazines in their respect for the fullest possible extent.

The chain expects to begin functioning along the Atlantic seaboard within 10 days and within another 10 days at far west as Chicago. Already a Michigan group of nine stations is in operation. Stations comprising the seaboard chain are to be WMBT, New York; ultimately to become WYNN; WOL, Washington; WPM, Philadelphia; WOAX, Trenton; N. J.; and WBCM, Baltimore.

The organizers expect that when the chain is complete it will comprise 100 or more stations in what is described as the lower powered group.

"Admiral" Title Puzzle For Annapolis Middle

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 10.—(P)—James Truman Bingham, second-class midshipman at the United States Naval Academy, is puzzled as to what he is going to do with his new title of "admiral," bestowed on him by A. B. Chandler, acting governor of Kentucky.

The 22-year-old midshipman, a resident of Louisville, was honored by the acting governor along with some 200 other persons, who were given the rank of colonel, admiral or captain.

Bingham has not received official notification of his appointment from Kentucky and was not aware of it until a classman, hearing of the promotion, yelled at him: "Hey, admiral!"

Although the midshipman has two more years of study before becoming eligible for ensign, the Kentucky title theoretically makes him the highest ranking officer at Annapolis.

Multi-Millionaire Borrows $1.50 From Livered Chauffeur for Gas

BRUNSWICK, Ga., March 10.—(P)—A sixteen-cylinder automobile with a liveried chauffeur halted in front of the hotel and a suave man with cane and fur collar alighted.

He introduced himself to the hotel clerk as a member of a famous New York family and they chatted of this and that.

Oh, by the way! Would the clerk cash a traveler's check? Lots of checks but no cash because of the banking holiday, don't you know.

The clerk was sorry, but he couldn't cash any checks.

"Well, how can I eat?" insisted the suave man.

The clerk hadn't the slightest idea. A search of pockets revealed five cents. His fashionably-dressed wife

PAY FOR TEACHERS IS PLEA OF MATHIS

AMERICUS, Ga., March 10.—(P)—J. E. Mathis, president of the Georgia Education Association, composed of teachers in the schools of the state, today made a plea for action to the taxpayers of Georgia urging them to communicate with their representatives and senators in the state legislature urging them to provide sufficient money to pay the salaries of teachers.

The communication read in part: "The school efficiency of Georgia has been greatly lessened during the last four years because the school systems of the state did not receive what they were promised by Georgia. Therefore, as taxpayers of this state, you are confronted with the decision in regard to the state's action. You, and you alone, can determine what the general assembly now in session in Atlanta will do. One of three things will be obliged to happen:

1. Our general assembly must find new sources of revenue to take the place of the present tax on land and city real estate.

2. Or the general assembly must reduce the amount we are now spending on highways—more than one-half of the state's income—and put part of this money to the support of the schools and humanitarian activities.

3. If none of the above is done—and you can make one of the two be done—then our children must suffer because our schools can not remain open.

"You, as honorable citizens, cannot expect the teachers longer to run the schools with no hope of pay. . . . One of the three must happen—have a sales tax, divert highway funds or do injustice to your children by closing the schools.

The communication said the teachers and school officials agree that "this is not a good time to talk of any increase in taxes."

PAY FOR TEACHERS IS PLEA OF MATHIS

Education Group President Calls on Taxpayers To Back Program.

AMERICUS, Ga., March 10.—(P)—J. E. Mathis, president of the Georgia Education Association, composed of teachers in the schools of the state, today made a plea for action to the taxpayers of Georgia urging them to communicate with their representatives and senators in the state legislature urging them to provide sufficient money to pay the salaries of teachers.

The communication read in part: "The school efficiency of Georgia has been greatly lessened during the last four years because the school systems of the state did not receive what they were promised by Georgia. Therefore, as taxpayers of this state, you are confronted with the decision in regard to the state's action. You, and you alone, can determine what the general assembly now in session in Atlanta will do. One of three things will be obliged to happen:

1. Our general assembly must find new sources of revenue to take the place of the present tax on land and city real estate.

2. Or the general assembly must reduce the amount we are now spending on highways—more than one-half of the state's income—and put part of this money to the support of the schools and humanitarian activities.

3. If none of the above is done—and you can make one of the two be done—then our children must suffer because our schools can not remain open.

"You, as honorable citizens, cannot expect the teachers longer to run the schools with no hope of pay. . . . One of the three must happen—have a sales tax, divert highway funds or do injustice to your children by closing the schools.

The communication said the teachers and school officials agree that "this is not a good time to talk of any increase in taxes."

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Bart Burgess is married in a cabaret on Peachtree street, 50 miles from his home in Wyatville. His companion, Lora Sackett, a red-haired woman, known as "Nosey Iny," rows over to a town for a carpenter. A girl is over to her father's island, but her small brother says their mother would have a fit over Burgess. Bart's father, a carpenter, helps and taxes home. Mr. Davis, the carpenter, tells Bart the Burgess have lived on the island 15 years, but don't mix. The family travels. While the boat is being lifted, Bart goes over to the island with the girl, Alice Bailey. He invites her to visit in Wyatville. Less than a week later, Trevor Burgess, Bart's father, dies suddenly from a heart attack. Bart is left with the care of his little mother. The family lawyer gives Bart a letter left for him by his father, in which he confesses to being a hick. The Burgess of Folly Island are his second family. They know him as Matthew Bailey. He asks Bart for his mother's sake, to guard the secret and leaves a fortune to provide for the Burgess. Bart calls on Mrs. Bailey, posing as a lawyer, and finds her a lovely woman, not the hickard he expected. Bart is happy to find his mother that Alice had Matthew Bailey's daughter. But to keep her from visiting his home, he tells her that the Burgess is now a problem. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

Then, privileged as a second cousin. Mrs. Lind came often, and always with her was her daughter, Lora Sackett. Life and death being of no particular importance to her schedule. Lora remained atrocious, very female, full of disconcerting attacks and counter-attacks. One afternoon when her mother was upstairs with Mrs. Burgess, Lora chose to torture Bart about the style of citizen he was becoming she said. Her big brown eyes played all over him like dancing mice, and she pretended to pick a hair from his lapel.

"Office work," she said, "is wearing you down, big boy. How old are the stenographers in that old office of yours?"

"One of 'em's a grandmother," she teetered on her high heels, like a yellowbird on a flower.

"What's good for home consumption, but you can't use it on me. Because I'm an experienced woman." Then she considered him and said: "I don't know. I still think you're one of the chummy kind of Burgess."

"I'm a flame, compared to you," he twitted. "If I flattered around the way you do, I'd burn, at least twice a day."

"How do you know I don't?" A challenge.

"I, maybe you deserve to. But you don't burn. You're fireproof."

Lora stood right in front of him, heels together, flashing up at him.

But it was well within the picture what Bart saw an hour later driving down to the village in his own runabout. An underslung car, grotesque as a submarine inbred with a racing monoplane. A streak of light and they had passed him. Iny Warren, inaudibly preoccupied with his breakneck gears. Lora in her funny green hat making sprightly gestures as she talked on and on. That's her life, thought Bart. And, after all, why not?

That night Mrs. Burgess stayed down for dinner; Bart made an occasion of the domestic set-a-table, put on his dinner coat, brought up a bottle of old claret from the cellar. They had moved their chairs together, closing the space where Trevor Burgess used to sit, and for a time Bart strengthened himself with the delusion that the ghost had quit his side. Yet deep in him there was a worry. A devoted son is so knitted into the life of his mother, and Mrs. Burgess was never more upstanding than a vine. She talked about his business, revealed her ignorance, couldn't understand the joke when he satirized himself as the office errand boy. But she was always close to the topic that ground into him.

Because of the secret he bore alone, and his vow that three women should not suffer from it, he felt more than ever tender toward her. He admired her in that dress. It was black, but it wasn't mourning. He liked the pearls, the gloves in the war. Yet as he looked at her he knew that she would have preferred to go about swathed in crepe. Life to her was a conventional symbol.

But, brightened with wine, mother spoke of Aunt Augusta Forrester, a spinster relative on the Wyatt side. Mrs. Burgess took her seriously, as

"You despise me a whole lot, don't you, Bart?"

"Where'd you get that notion in your head?"

"Because..."

Her full, obtrusive lips were right under his. And why did he do that silly thing? Without thought, with out reason he leaned down and kissed her on the mouth. Even then he thought of Alice. But the taste was unexpectedly pleasant. It embarrassed him a little to see the color mounting to her cheeks. Gosh, did she mind? She was a sort of cousin of his, and casual girls nowadays should be used to such things.

But she went on talking as though nothing had happened. Only her speech was a little more excited than before.

"Have you got over being sore at Iny Warren?"

The major problems of life had crowded Iny out of Bart's mind. Then he remembered a faint irritation.

"Sore? I wasn't sore. Only I think you're acting like a nut. Lora. If I were your parent or guardian..."

"Is it because you have a personal grudge against him?" she asked. "Or do you honestly think he's bad for me?"

"The last guess is right, and you know it."

"Do you think I'm worth plucking from the burning?" Slowly raising her languid eyes.

"I think you're a very sweet woman. But contrary as hell. Even if you were a worm you'd be too good for that bug."

"My second cousin thrice removed," she cooed, "you ought to learn some new words. Bum's faded. Try Snoot."

Then, suddenly, "I think you must like me a whole lot, Bart Burgess."

"How do you get that?"

"Or you wouldn't try to poison poor little Iny. Wait till we're married."

"What? Blowing a long, blue ray. "My gosh, you're not engaged to that..."

"Snoot," she supplied promptly. "No, but miracles happen."

"Well," he admitted, "I do like you a whole lot or I wouldn't work over you so hard."

Then her eyes slitted keenly, and she said, "You don't like me as much as you did before—"

"Before what?" he was going to say, "Before I went to Folly Island."

"Before you lost your heart to the insurance business."

Just then Mrs. Lind came down, a furtive lady, always a little less than shabby in her struggle to keep up with Wyatville. She hurried Lora away. They'd be late for tea somewhere.

But it was well within the picture what Bart saw an hour later driving down to the village in his own runabout. An underslung car, grotesque as a submarine inbred with a racing monoplane. A streak of light and they had passed him. Iny Warren, inaudibly preoccupied with his breakneck gears. Lora in her funny green hat making sprightly gestures as she talked on and on. That's her life, thought Bart. And, after all, why not?

That night Mrs. Burgess stayed down for dinner; Bart made an occasion of the domestic set-a-table, put on his dinner coat, brought up a bottle of old claret from the cellar. They had moved their chairs together, closing the space where Trevor Burgess used to sit, and for a time Bart strengthened himself with the delusion that the ghost had quit his side. Yet deep in him there was a worry. A devoted son is so knitted into the life of his mother, and Mrs. Burgess was never more upstanding than a vine. She talked about his business, revealed her ignorance, couldn't understand the joke when he satirized himself as the office errand boy. But she was always close to the topic that ground into him.

Because of the secret he bore alone, and his vow that three women should not suffer from it, he felt more than ever tender toward her. He admired her in that dress. It was black, but it wasn't mourning. He liked the pearls, the gloves in the war. Yet as he looked at her he knew that she would have preferred to go about swathed in crepe. Life to her was a conventional symbol.

But, brightened with wine, mother spoke of Aunt Augusta Forrester, a spinster relative on the Wyatt side. Mrs. Burgess took her seriously, as

"Marry poor little Lora and reform her," said Bart.

"No," decided his mother, "I didn't mean that. Of course, I know she has picked up a lot of common habits from some of those frightful people who have come here lately. Like those Warrens." Cringing inside her pretty black dress. Then, as if to conclude an argument, she said, "You'll meet somebody you'll like better."

"Plenty of time," said Bart.

"But you ought to settle down," she decided.

Settle down. How much farther down could he settle than here at home, steeped in the Burgess habit of mind? To marry Lora, of course, wouldn't be quite that. It was hard to imagine settling down with Lora. When it was mother's time for bed he took her to her door. His good-night kiss was a little ashamed. He had to make up such elaborate excuses. Tomorrow would be Saturday and he didn't see how he'd help much, he said, hanging around with Aunt Augusta and the little dog, Hero. Why shouldn't he stay over in New York, dine quietly at the Brook Club, take in a show? If the town amused him he mightn't come back until late Sunday.

Continued Monday.

They Laughed When He Sat Down At the Piano!

They laughed when he sat down at the piano—they screamed when he got up!

At least this is what Mr. Mike Chambers, the Georgia Tech track coach, says of his old pal, Mr. Jack Cannon, the football line coach.

Mr. Cannon has gone for the piano. The power of the written ad got him. "We guarantee to teach you to play the piano in 15 lessons."

Jack Cannon has had five. He can already play "Mammy."

And pals, I ask you, isn't that a tune for this day and time? MAMMY!

Mr. Cannon was the scourge of the gridiron, so to speak, in 1929. He was the bare-headed guard who roamed and blocked his way onto the all-American team while the late Knute Rockne nominated him as one of his best.

And now Mr. Cannon is tickling the ivories.

"I have hopes that the Irish will produce another great musician," said Mike Chambers. "The harp has always been the instrument of the Irish—the shoulder harp. They tell me that the piano is very little different from a shoulder harp. Not since Blind Rafferty has the Irish nation had a great harp player. You recall the old lines:

*"The harp that once through Tara's halls
The soul of music shed,
Now hangs mute on Tara's walls
As though its soul were dead."*

"If Mr. Cannon can play 'Mammy' in five lessons I am going to take over his management after 15 lessons. Who is this guy Paderewski, anyhow? The Irish nation may yet produce another great musician."

And Mr. Chambers went away to teach his track team how to run and leap and vault.

WORSE THAN HE THOUGHT.

When Coach W. A. Alexander learned that his line coach was taking piano lessons he said, "Conditions are even worse than I thought."

THE MARATHON DISTANCE.

Ray Miller, who finished well up in a couple of marathons last year, is training daily and diligently at Georgia Tech for the track season. He plans to compete in some distance events here and there.

On Thursday Ray Miller ran 10 miles just to warm up. He did a fast five miles Friday afternoon. Today he will take a 20-mile run.

These are runs—not jogs—and they are over measured distances.

Will all those who could ride a bicycle 20 miles please raise their hands?

SCRIP ISN'T NEW.

The young lady next door wonders why all this talk about scrip as if it were something new. "Boys have been taking me to scrip dances for years," she said.

HONEST AND TRULY—THIS IS NEWS!

At the home of Mr. Sam Cox, who does the markets for The Constitution, a rat or so has appeared about the premises. The cat seemed unable to do anything about it.

And so Mr. Cox purchased a large and substantial rat trap. The first night out he was awakened by the sound of the trap being bounced about. Mr. Cox grinned and decided to let the rat suffer all evening. I regret for the S. P. C. A. to discover this strain in Mr. Cox, but nevertheless it was his decision.

The next morning he arose early and went to see his capture.

The cat was in the trap.

(Note to S. P. C. A.—The cat was uninjured but humiliated.)

MR. WEBER SUFFERS.

Mr. Henry Weber, the wrestling importer for Atlanta, is suffering. He has received a letter from a young man who blames Mr. Weber's wrestling shows for his unhappy life.

"I wear a 13½ collar and weigh 119 pounds," the man wrote, "and since I took my girl to see one of your wrestling shows she looks at me in a very disgusted fashion and seems to be comparing me with your giants. I am worrying to death about it. Now she wants to see Garibaldi next week, so reserve me two tickets. But you and your wrestlers have ruined my life."

This has naturally caused Mr. Weber some sorrow, as he is at heart a kindly man. In proof of that he is going to reserve the young man two tickets on the front row so his girl can see better.

He is also going to take checks from his regular customers if the banks are not open. "I think they will be," he said. "I have the utmost confidence in the banks and I also have confidence in my customers."

PAY THE STARS.

George Herman Ruth will get more than $50,000 to play for the Yankees. And, of course, he deserves it. The baseball business, or any other business, had best pay its real entertainers. They need them more now than ever.

Rud Rennie, covering the Yankee camp at St. Petersburg, writes of the Babe's first day at camp:

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 8.—Babe Ruth still can draw a crowd. Say what you like, think what you like about Babe's scorn for a salary of $50,000 a year, but he is in a class by himself as a baseball attraction.

The Yankee infielders and outfielders—the entire squad except Charley Ruffing, Lou Gehrig and Joe Sewell—appeared on Huggins field for the first time today. Long before the players trooped out of the clubhouse, motor cars from many states were parked in every foot of available space. The little uncovered wooden stand was filled. They were there to see Ruth. There must have been 700 persons present. Even in the gold old days, the Babe did not attract much more attention than this.

The people waited for him outside the clubhouse. They picked him out of a group of emerging athletes. James Terry, of 52 Northfield road, New Rochelle, was the first to catch him for an autograph. Men and women took his picture. He shook hands and kissed babies.

And, of course, the Babe obliged by hitting one out of the park. The Babe is the Babe. He helps all of baseball. He built the Yankee stadium. He will pull them in this year. The Babe is the Babe. And he's worth $100,000 a year—according to baseball values. They are offering a lot of ordinary players $10,000 per year. Is there anyone present who will not say The Babe is worth ten times as much at the gate? Always remember I am speaking of baseball values. In no other business is anyone worth $50,000 per year.

N. A. P. S., Seminary Armour Is Named To Play Tonight

GEHRIG SIGNS, LEAVING RUTH ONLY OUTLOOK

Takes Cut Believed To Be $5,000; Babe Still Silent.

By Alan Gould.

Associated Press Sports Editor.
NEW YORK, March 10.—(UP)—Lou Gehrig, junior half of the New York Yankees' home run partnership, signed for the 1933 baseball season today after the longest holdout since the 1925 season. Gehrig, who was paid $25,000 for the season, will leave tomorrow, accompanied by his mother, for the Yankee training camp at St. Petersburg, where he will arrive in time to get into the first exhibition game and keep his playing record intact.

Neither Gehrig nor Ed Barrow, business pilot of the Yankees, would give the slightest inkling of the salary terms agreed upon. It is known "Hungry Lou" took a "cut," but the consensus was it did not exceed $5,000. Gehrig probably would receive $22,500 for the coming season.

This leaves Babe Ruth, as usual, the sole remaining Yankee holdout and apparently facilitates plans for the capitulation of the Bambino or his employer, Colonel Jacob Ruppert, or both, in St. Petersburg next week.

Colonel Ruppert is due to reach the training camp either Monday or Tuesday. He has indicated no desire to compromise on the club's original $30,000 offer and Ruth has been emphatic in demanding at least $32,500.

Ruth and Gehrig together have received at least $100,000 in salary for each of the past three campaigns. No matter how much their pay checks drop below that figure this year they still will carry the long range menace of the Yankee attack. The Babe alone in training and Gehrig will report in good condition. Gehrig and gymnasium workouts have helped Lou ward off excess weight.

Gehrig hopes this year to set a new all-time major league record for consecutive games played. He closed the 1932 campaign with a mark of 1,107 championship season games in a row and needs to play 111 more to pass the record of 1,307, now held by Everett Scott, former Red Sox and Yankee shortstop. Gehrig began his streak in 1925.

YANKEES.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 10.—(UP)—With Lou Gehrig scratched off the holdout list, leaving Babe Ruth the only remaining Yankee who has not signed his 1933 contract, the New York club's training camp today waited for the arrival of Colonel Jacob Ruppert, Yankee owner, and settlement of his salary dispute with Babe Ruth.

Ruth and Colonel Ruppert are expected to hold a conference next week and engage in the annual business of contract signing while baseball scribes and newscaster cameramen record the formalities, and still insist on demanding at least $32,500.

GIANTS WIN.

LOS ANGELES, March 10.—(UP)—John Ryan, rookie shortstop just up from Buffalo, of the International league, put on a great fielding exhibition as the New York Giants defeated the National league champions from Chicago, 5-3, at Wrigley field today. The young infielder handled 14 chances, getting credit for four putouts and ten assists. Ryan was in the game in the second inning, when he collected five hits and four runs. One of the blows was a homer, by Johnny Vezner, third baseman, over the left-field fence with one on. Ryan, 20, is a native of New York City. He was born on March 2, 1913, in New York City. He is a native of New York City. He is a native of New York City.

BROWNS.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 10.—(UP)—Ted Gullie, outfielder, wired today that he had accepted the St. Louis Browns' terms and would report here next week.

BRADENTON, Fla., March 10.—(UP)—Manager Gabby Street expects Jimmy Wilson to do most of the Cardinal catching this year. The old sergeant said he expects Wilson to be on duty in at least 120 of the 154 games of the schedule.

Training work in Cardinal camp has been mostly routine this week.

TIGERS.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 10.—(UP)—The Detroit Tigers will get their first real taste of baseball in this spring training camp today. The team will play a five-inning game between teams made up of squad members.

The first real competition comes later next week against the University of Texas, at Austin.

RED SOX.

SARASOTA, Fla., March 10.—(UP)—The penetrating rays of a hot Florida sun today forced Manager Mark McGuire to cut his scheduled practice. The Boston Red Sox workout in half. Voleiball made its first appearance in the Sox' camp and the squad's heavyweights spent 20 minutes in the gymnasium, tossing the undersized basketballs back and forth.

ATHLETICS.

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 10.—(UP)—Connie Mack, leader of the Philadelphia Athletics, returned to the spring training camp today and watched his protegee work up his exercises before opening the season's first exhibition series.

The veteran manager expressed his satisfaction with the advancement of the squad since he left a week ago. Except for a few of the newest rookies, the entire squad leaves tomorrow for the opening exhibition series with the Brooklyn Dodgers, at Miami.

PHILLIES.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 10.—(UP)—Two "fence-busting" hits from the bat of Chuck Klein today of the Philadelphia Phillies landed the Phillies slugging outfielder for the first time. Klein landed on a couple of fast pitches shortly after arriving in camp today. He is the first of the Phillies' outfielders and outfielders, and sent the homebodies far and away from the plate.

DOGDERS.

MIAMI, Fla., March 10.—(UP)—With the exception of Joe Stripp at third base and Hack Wilson in right field, the Brooklyn Dodgers' club will line up with regulars in their places when the Carey stars begin their three-game series against the Athletics here tomorrow.

Bob Reis will play third base, with Wright at short, Cuccinelli at second, Joe Judge at first and O'Doul, Fredricks and Danny Taylor in the outfield. Bill Outen, hard-hitting catcher up from Jersey City, has a bruised

MISS MADDOX WINS RADIUM TITLE AGAIN

Defeats Mrs. Lippitt, Albany, 2 and 1, in Finals of Play.

ALBANY, Ga., March 10.—(UP)—Miss Margaret Maddox, of Atlanta, today successfully defended her Radium Springs women's invitation golf championship by defeating Mrs. H. B. Lippitt, of Albany, two and one.

Both players were erratic on the outgoing nine but settled down coming in to play some of the best golf of the tournament.

Miss Maddox was one up at the turn and Mrs. Lippitt marked her stroke for stroke until the fifteenth, where the champion ran down a 42-foot putt for a birdie three. The next two holes were halved as Miss Maddox sent her approach shots dead.

The cards:

Miss Maddox ..... 554 565 565—46

Mrs. Lippitt ..... 553 565 575—47

In—

Miss Maddox ..... 774 353 54—35

Mrs. Lippitt ..... 744 354 54—36

Mrs. William Filer, of Scarsdale, N. Y., defeated Mrs. Flora Conrad, of Scarsdale, 5 and 3, for the first-field championship.

Miss Maddox.

Tells of Match.

By MARGARET MADDOX.
RADIUM SPRINGS, Ga., March 10.—In the championship I met Mrs. Sam Brown Lippitt, of Radium Springs, the same good golfer whom I played in the finals of the Georgia state at Brookhaven last summer. Don't think for a moment that I took Mrs. Lippitt lightly. I, as well as many other devotees of the game, believe Mrs. Lippitt will soon be a coming star in the golf circles of the south.

Back to the championship match again, we squared the first hole in nice style. The second hole the same, and Mrs. Lippitt won the third hole with a nice par three. From then on our play for the match was square through No. 8, the difficult hole which all golfers dread on this famous course. I turned one up on Mrs. Lippitt, who has played comparatively little tournament golf and I am proud to say that she showed real sportsmanship when she conceded me several putts for a half when she should have tried for a stymie. Instead, with her last of a warlike dagger usually displayed in tournament play, she conceded one or two putts for a half where she might have played me a stymie. Going to the 13th I was one up.

Fortunately I sunk a long putt on 15th, making me two up. The large gallery applauded and I felt on top of the world. We squared the 16th and I went up on the 17th, however. This was not as simple as it sounds. We both had long drives. Mrs. Lippitt just a bit shorter than I, she dropped her second shot just short of the green. I'll admit I dreaded my second shot. However, I made a good one just 10 feet from the pin. The putt just short I sank the fourth for a win and the match was over.

In the consolation championship, Mrs. Harold C. Kersten, of Richmond, defeated Miss Jean Jacques, of New York, 6 and 4. Mrs. Kersten, last year's champion of Virginia, played good golf today to win her match. A threat for the championship, Mrs. Kersten will play in the southern here in June.

One by one the realists of the game, Mrs. Lippitt, played a close match with Mrs. Flora Conrad, of Scarsdale, N. Y., to win 3 and 2 for the championship. The first hole was a tie.

The second field, honor went to Miss Virginia Owens, of Radium Springs, who defeated Mrs. Henry Macklin, of Radium, on the 14th hole.

Miss Fishwick.

Wins at Belleair.

BELLEAIR, Fla., March 10.—(UP)—Miss Diana Fishwick, women's golf champion of England, won the annual Belleair women's championship here today in a thrilling 18-hole match with Miss Barbara Pyman, also a member of the British golf team. The match was a close one, with the last green, Miss Fishwick winning, 1 up.

Miss Pyman played spectacular golf on the first nine and was 4 up going to the 7th tee. She countered ill luck on the incoming nine, however, going out of bounds on the 13th hole and taking a seven on the 15th hole, where her ball hit the flag. Miss Pyman was out in 39 but required 44 on the incoming 18th hole. Miss Fishwick put together cards of 42 and 40.

Mrs. Mark Larned.

Wins Flag Tourney.

Mrs. Mark Larned, of the nine holes and had one stroke to spare in a nine-hole flag tournament Friday morning on the Piedmont park course sponsored by the Piedmont Park Women's Golf Association. Mrs. P. M. Jeffries was only a few feet away from the ninth cup for second place and Mrs. D. T. Cannon was one inch back of Mrs. Jeffries for third place.

Mrs. Red Barron played her first round on the Piedmont course this year and finished close to the leaders.

RACING BILL.

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 10.—(UP)—By a vote of 68 to 37 the Oklahoma house of representatives today passed a bill to legalize horse racing on the Oklahoma on the pari-mutuel and certificate systems. It now goes to the senate.

Meanwhile a tough top sergeant who didn't care a couple of whoops about the national pastime became jealous of the sergeant who yanked a "Bingo" Brown, head of the National Boxing Association, effective in all states where the national association has jurisdiction.

The N. B. A. is affiliated with the International Boxing Union of France, where Stribling was suspended for an unsatisfactory bout Monday.

$125 a month, but he never started the season. Frank had plenty of pitchers and lent the big fellow to Mobile, which finally got the full ownership of him in court. Later he went to the Athletics. Hasty was waited 14 years for a chance to start a season with Atlanta and this spring he will get it, judging by the way he has been showing up here.

Retains Golf Title

Defeating Mrs. Lippitt, Albany, in the finals annual Radium Springs golf tournament, Miss Margaret Maddox, Atlanta champion, retained her title. She won the match, 2-1. Miss Maddox also holds the Atlanta and Georgia women's championships.

Camp Gordon Incident Shaped Hasty's Career

Call for Volunteer Baseball Players in 1918 Brought His Talents to Light.

By Jimmy Jones.

MOBILE, Ala., March 10.—An officer of the day was calling for volunteers, not to go out and fight a battle, but to play on the camp's baseball team. All the soldiers, some of whom could not play a lick of baseball, were volunteering, of course, because it meant temporary relief from such menial tasks as kitchen police and doing extra hitchhikes on the sentry posts.

One by one they were stepping up, bank clerks, millionaires' sons and grocerboys, all recognizable only by the hue of Uncle Sam's khaki.

A big buck private in the rear ranks was standing in the background, careful to keep out of sight. The officer else for the buck private to do but go on up and give his name to the officer.

"Here's the best pitcher in camp," he yelled. So there was no doubt about it. The buck private to do but go on up and give his name to the officer.

HAPPENED AT GORDON.

If it had not been for that little episode of army life, Bob Hasty might still be an unknown farmer of near Marietta, Ga. Certainly, at the time, pitching baseball for a livelihood was the thing remotest from his thoughts. It happened back in 1918 when Bob was stationed at Camp Gordon, near Atlanta.

Prior to entering the army he had played just a little baseball at Mount Berry School and at the agricultural school at Powder Springs, Ga. But it so happened that the Camp Gordon team needed pitchers and because Bob was big and strong and had thrown a baseball a little, his mates decided he was a pitcher. Their judgment was right.

Hasty got so good that he became a sort of gentleman of leisure about the army post. He could throw that ball with plenty of steam behind it and he soon became known as the "strutikunk" among the doughboys.

He was a corporal when the regimental skirmishes and the commissioned officers, even to the captains and colonels, looked indulgently upon the hulking North Georgian in the parade inspections.

CORPORAL HASTY.

In the army, even during those turbulent days, the higher-ups had a way of taking care of the good athletes. He was given the best of the barracks. It was decided that perhaps Hasty didn't have all the time he needed in order to practice his control, so they made him a corporal. That was mighty good for him, as his limitation and in order to be a good pitcher, one must have a catcher at his back and call. So they made Hasty a sergeant, with the rank whenever he felt the urge to warm up. He set out to crash the show. One day when Bob Hasty was leisurely warming up, he stepped in and ordered the catcher out of the ranks whenever he felt the urge to warm up. He set out to crash the show. One day when Bob Hasty was leisurely warming up, he stepped in and ordered the catcher out of the ranks whenever he felt the urge to warm up. He set out to crash the show. One day when Bob Hasty was leisurely warming up, he stepped in and ordered the catcher out of the ranks whenever he felt the urge to warm up.

He kept on pitching around Camp Gordon until one day Charley Frank saw him and signed him to play ball for Atlanta in the Southern league at

CRACKERS PLAY SENATORS TODAY IN FIRST TEST

Young Pitchers To See Action Against Nats. Vets Held Back.

By Jimmy Jones.

MOBILE, March 10.—After a series of intra-camp contests the Atlanta Crackers will step out tomorrow and play the Washington Senators here at 3 p. m. in the first official exhibition game of the season.

Left Carriers will be sent to the firing line for the Crackers. Manager Charley Moore announced tonight, Leonard Mayo, Atlanta boy, and Long, Cordell (C.A.) rookie, will also be pressed into service.

Manager Moore will work the three pitchers three innings each. He is seeking to find two young pitchers who can win a series of games.

Moore is well pleased with the youngsters and thinks he will get two or three regulars out of the bunch.

THE LINEUP.

The following lineup for the game was announced tonight: Carriers, pitcher; Eismann, catcher; Cummings, left field; Laski, second base; Rollins, third base; Singleton, left field; McKee, center field; Barron, right field; Chatham, shortstop.

McCartor also will be tried out in shortstop.

Your Uncle Wilbert Robinson, president of the Crackers, is due to arrive late tonight for a series of conferences with his youthful manager.

Several trades calculated to bring promising players from big league clubs are brewing. The Yankees have promised player aid and Sitts is one of the players expected to be secured.

BUTCHER REPORTS.

Max Butcher, young pitcher, reported today, to bring a further report to the Crackers' happy family.

Manager Moore is saving the old pitchers for Sunday when Hasty and Hearn will be called into action.

The squad is progressing favorably. Trainer Bill Daly is pleased with the condition of the players.

But tomorrow is the big day—the Senators here for the first exhibition game. Charley Moore is anxious to see how the young players will act.

Several former Chattanooga stars, including Bolton and Cecil Travis, will be in the Washington lineup. Nick Altrock and Al Schacht, the famous baseball comedians, will be here to furnish sideline amusement.

Eddie Phillips, catcher, is expected Sunday or Monday, Moore said tonight.

Phelps Returns.

Unsigned Contract.

MOBILE, Ala., March 10.—Wilbert Robinson, president of the Crackers, returned to Mobile tonight with the news that Babe Phelps, rookie first baseman, had returned his unsigned contract for the second time, refusing terms offered him by the Crackers.

Robinson said that he had wired Phelps word that the club would take him on trial and in the event he failed to make the grade, would pay his transportation back to Maryland.

The Cracker president is here for a series of conferences with Manager Charley Moore regarding the roster cuts and pending player deals.

Art Weis Told.

To Make Own Deal.

MOBILE, Ala., March 10.—Art Weis, Cracker outfielder, bought from Louisville, has been notified to make a deal for himself. If he thinks he can get better salary than the Crackers offer, in view of Louisville club going bankrupt the status of the deal is doubtful.

POPE, FORMER SOLON, GRANTED FULL PARDON

Citizenship Rights Restored
by Governor Talmadge to Paroled Attorney.

A full and complete pardon has been granted by Governor Eugene Talmadge to D. F. Pope, convicted in February, 1930, of uttering a forgery and sentenced to serve a four-year term in prison.

Pope was indicted on counts of forgery and uttering a forgery at the same time Mrs. Josie Wardlaw was indicted for forging name of the latter's mother to a will.

The Walker county superior court jury, which heard both cases, found Pope not guilty of the first charge of forgery but guilty on the count charging him with having uttered a forgery.

The state prison board last November recommended a parole for Mrs. Wardlaw but withheld any recommendation for Pope, a former state senator who was attorney for Mrs. Wardlaw.

In his pardon order Governor Talmadge refers to the grave doubt entertained by many good citizens as to Pope's guilt.

"Whereas, a full pardon for him has been requested by a great number of the most upright and outstanding citizens, business and professional men of his section and the state at large, who state that he is handicapped in providing for his family on account of not having a pardon, and stating further that they believe that his fine record as a citizen before conviction and demand an immediate and full pardon, carrying restoration of citizenship, and stating that many good citizens entertain grave doubt as to his guilt, it is "Ordered: That a full and complete pardon be, and it is hereby, granted to D. F. Pope.

"EUGENE TALMADGE, Governor."

KRAFT URGES MOVE TO STABILIZE PRICES

In an effort to improve the price paid for farm products, J. L. Kraft, president of the Kraft Foods Corporation, has telegraphed 25 governors asking them to join in a plea to President Roosevelt to issue a proclamation requesting dealers to establish higher prices for dairy products.

The telegram points out that such items are used by dealers as loss items or leaders without profit, and that the farmers suffer thereby. Its text follows:

"General improvement cannot begin until prices of farm products improve. We are substantial operators in your state dealing direct with farmers."

"We urge that you join with 25 other governors to whom we are wiring in a plea to President Roosevelt that he issue a proclamation asking all retailers of food products to cease using dairy products as loss items or leaders without profit, and that new retail prices be established indicating an upward instead of a downward trend."

"Also to urge upon all direct buyers of dairy products that an effort be made to stop further declines to the end that advances may be made from a present stabilized bottom. We believe such a movement would meet with favor from all concerned."

Daniels Considered As Envoy to Mexico

WASHINGTON, March 10.—(AP) Joseph Daniels, North Carolina publisher, is under serious consideration for appointment as ambassador to Mexico.

At the same time, it was emphasized at the White House that no decision has been made on selection of an ambassador to the neighboring country, and that several other names remain under consideration.

In other quarters, however, it was learned that Daniels, a close friend of President Roosevelt, is seriously regarded as a likely choice.

Daniels, war-time secretary of the navy when Mr. Roosevelt was his assistant, also has been in mind for head of the unified national transportation agency which Mr. Roosevelt plans. It is believed that a choice of his is open to him. It is certain Mr. Roosevelt wants him in the new government set-up.
